

Your Partner in Wind Energy

Renewable energy has become an increasingly preferred, economical and sustainable alternative source of electricity. Wind power is experiencing strong growth across Canada and the United States. HMA has the necessary combination of skills and abilities to make your wind farm a success.

HMA Agents will meet with landowners and occupants to discuss the project and confirm turbine locations, access routing, cable routing, and substation location. HMA professionals are also experts at public consultation and can plan and/or coordinate stakeholder opportunities such as open houses.

As with other aspects of wind farm development, the standards for land agreements and management are evolving and increasing due to advancement of the industry and the financial climate.

With the tightening of credit, it has become extremely important for projects to have a very high level of diligence for development agreements. HMA can negotiate leases for wind rights with landowners and create the necessary long-term contract that covers many aspects of the project, such as compensation, placement of turbines, access roads and the location of electric collection and transmission systems.

HMA understands all related aspects of project development, contract law, land agreements, and has the ability to present, negotiate and obtain agreements.

HMA understands the wind industry rules, requirements, regulations and best practices and is constantly monitoring developments to ensure that your project is a success.

HMA is an active member of the Canadian Wind Energy Association and Clean Energy BC (formerly the IPPBC).
